Table of Contents

Cover Page..... i
Acknowledgments..... ii
Dedication..... iii
Table of Contents..... iv
List of Tables..... vi
List of Figures..... vii
English Abstract..... viii
Arabic Abstract..... x

Chapter one: Introduction

Introduction..... 1
Importance of the Study..... 6
Definition of Terms..... 10
Research Assumptions..... 10
Limitations of the Study..... 11

Chapter Two: Review of Related Literature

Introduction..... 14
The Concept of Mentoring..... 15
Formal Versus Informal Mentoring..... 19
The Mentoring Approach..... 21
Phases of Mentorship..... 24
The Reciprocity of Mentorship Relationships..... 26
Potential Problems Caused by Poor Mentoring..... 32
Criteria for Identifying Effective Mentor-Teachers..... 37
Cross Versus Same Gender Mentoring..... 42
The Personal Characteristics of the Good Mentor..... 46
Functions and Roles of Mentors..... 49

Summary.....54
Chapter Three: Methodology
Study Population.....56
Sample.....57
Research Tools.....58
Procedure.....58
Contextual Analysis.....61
Chapter Four: Findings
Introduction.....64
Current Situation of Beginning Teachers.....65
-Concerns of Beginning Teachers.....65
-Areas of Assistance Needed.....68
-Sources of Help Beginning Teachers Seek.....75
-Beginning Teachers Readiness to be Mentored.....77
The Professional and Personal Attributes of a Good Mentor..77
-Professional Attributes.....78
-The Personal Attributes of the Mentor.....83
Mentorship Interaction.....86
- Location of Mentorship Interaction.....87
- Frequency of Mentor-teacher Interaction.....87
- Mentorship Duration.....88
Chapter Five: Summary and Discussion
Summary.....91
Discussion.....92
Conclusion.....101
Recommendations for Future Research.....104
References.....107
Appendices
Appendix: A The structured Interview Guide.....114