This research aims at recognizing how far the parents councils are efficient from the point of view of the administrators , teachers , and councilors of the governmental secondary schools in the governate of Ramallah .And recognizing the effect of sex , school location , school level , residence place , academic qualification ,and the experience of the teachers of both sexes ,administrators , and councilors . The research also contrasts between teachers and administrators and councilors .

To achieve this , the study examined a sample of (275) teachers ,administrators , and councilors( of both sexes )from 56 governmental secondary schools in Ramallah governate .This sample was to response to a questionnaire that examines the effect of efficiency of parents councils and that handles the following aspects :
( social , academic , counsling , administrative , and national levels )

This questionnaire has used Alpha Cronbach formula to conclude the whole consistency factor of the instrument which is estimated at the level of (0,98) ; a high level that meets the needs of the study .

Arithmetical average , testing independent groups (T) , and ANOVA

The study shows that the efficiency of the parents councils is very low that the response average scaled (2.37) of (5) degrees .It shows also that there are no differences of statistical significance at the significance level ( $\alpha=0.05$ ) in regard to the efficiency of parents councils in the governmental secondary schools in Ramallah governate .This refers to the following variables : sex , school level , school location , residency place , academic , qualification , and the experience of teachers of both sexes .

The study also points out that the differences are not statistically significant concerning the variable of "occupation".

The researcher recommends the following :

- To give the parents councils the opportunity to deal with the students' problems , and to adopt modern educational means in dealing with students .
- to raise awareness of the efficiency of parents council among all fields of society , so that it can be active .
